Racing to the finish line

Construction crews at the Kentucky Speedway on Monday were putting finishing touches on the major renovation project to improve access and parking for this year's June 30, NASCAR Quaker State 400 Sprint Cup Race. The Speedway has purchased about 170 acres to add more parking. More than $11 million is being spent by the track and the Commonwealth of Kentucky to ensure last year's massive traffic jam won't be repeated. Officials say the work will be completed well ahead of this month's race. Photo by Kelley Warnick

Fair will be bigger, better

The Gallatin County Fair will start next week. It will bring thrills, chills, laughs, rides and fun to get the Summer of 2012 started with a bang! Fair board president Hargis Davis and his team have lined up lots of new entertainment and the schedule is set. This will be the biggest fair yet at the site on U.S. 127 in Glencoe.

One of the feature attractions this year will be a Circus, which has never been seen at a Gallatin County Fair. It will include knife jugglers, acrobats, and a variety of clowns. There will be two shows per evening Monday through Thursday, then three shows Friday and Saturday. And it's offered free with the price of admission. "We've never had a circus before and we thought it would be great to bring one in this year," said Davis, "They're called No-Joes Clown Circus out of Atlanta and they are amazing. Be sure to check out their promotional film on the web-site nojoes-clowncircus.com. You won't believe what these folks can do."

There will be a new Carnival this year offered by Casey's Rides from Utica, Kentucky. The gravity-defying rides are also free with admission. Here's a Schedule:

- The fair will begin Friday, June 15, with a Demo Derby.
- Saturday, June 16 will feature Competition Horses, a Draft Horse Pull, and the Miss Gallatin County Pageant. The County Wide Church Service will be on Sunday, June 17.
- The Carnival and No-Joes Clown Circus will open Monday, June 18 and continue through the week. Also on Monday will be KOI Drag Racing, the Little Miss and Mister Pageant and the Miss Teen Pageant. The Citizen of the Year Award will be made during the Opening Ceremony at 6 p.m.
- The Gallatin County Fiscal Court will sponsor "$5 Car Load Night" on Tuesday. Events will include the Little Prince & Princess Pageant, a Mud Run, the Pet Show and the Ms. Gallatin County Pageant.
- On Wednesday, there will be the Junior Miss and Miss Pre-Teen pageants, and the NKTTA Truck Tug.
- There will be several Baby Shows on Thursday along with a MX Race.

•Friday will offer the Truck & Tractor Pulls along with the 4-H Livestock Weigh-In, the Petting Zoo & Animal Costume Contest. There will be a Cow Drop at 8 p.m.

•The final day of the Fair, Saturday, will feature the Livestock Show, an Antique Tractor Pull, Rock Buggy Race, and the Livestock Auction, which will start at 5:30 p.m.

Note: There will be no Antiques Show this year.

Admission will be $10 and will include all events and rides. There will be no charge for children under three or for the church service. Parking is always free!

The Gallatin County Fair is the perfect time to reconnect with friends and family while enjoying great entertainment at a fair price.

Make plans now to enjoy the Fair and let its June fun continue through the summer.

U.S. 42 claims another victim

A woman was killed last Friday, in an accident on U.S. 42 at nearly the same spot where a Gallatin County man, his daughter and grandson died in Nov. 2009. Catherine Wissel, 49, of Fort Wright was driving a 2003 Dodge van south on U.S. 42 near Miller-Owens Road in Boone County near the Gallatin County line about 11 a.m. on June 1, when she apparently lost control and slid off the road. The van traveled 30 to 40 feet and hit a tree. A passing driver saw the accident and called for help. Emergency responders called for a medical helicopter but the helicopter could not fly because of bad weather. U.S. 42 at that spot is curvy, steep and dangerous because the pavement is uneven. In Nov. 2009, a tragic accident there killed Dallas Wallace, 70, his daughter, Tamara Wallace, 45, and his grandson, Dillon Wallace, 11. In that accident, Tamara Wallace, who was also traveling south, lost control of her pickup truck and it ran into a Fed/Ex delivery truck traveling in the opposite direction. All three occupants of the pickup died instantly. On both occasions the road was wet from rain.

Corps resumes Markland work

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers will resume its work to repair Markland Dam's main 1,200 ft. lock chamber on Monday, June 11. The main lock chamber has been closed for more than a year as the Corps replaced both sets of lock gates in the main chamber. Last fall, both sets of gates were installed but high water late last year prevented the final steps needed to make the lock chamber operational.

Commercial river traffic has slowed significantly during the project because towboats are forced to use the lock's 600 ft. auxiliary chamber. Most tows must divide their string of barges to use the smaller lock which makes a trip through the dam more than twice as long. The total cost to replace the gates in the main lock chamber is $21.8 million. The scheduled date for completion is August 2012.

Lawrence ready for his day in court

Trial starts June 25

Well-known Gallatin County attorney and land owner Larry Lawrence will be in federal court this month to plead not guilty to charges he under-reported income from Racers strip club and other businesses he owns. Lawrence, who vehemently denies any wrongdoing, is scheduled to go to trial June 25. He sold the strip earlier this year.

According to court papers filed last Wednesday, federal prosecutors plan to present evidence that shows Lawrence's law firm didn't report $12,000 in income from his businesses. The charges cover the years 2004 to 2006.

"I pay my taxes every year," Lawrence said after he was indicted last October. "In fact, I paid $556,392 in taxes those years but I guess that's not good enough for them."

During the years in question, Lawrence reported yearly incomes ranging from a high of $1 million to a low of $247,000.

"It remains perplexing that there's a howl over the amount of money at issue," Lawrence said this week. "The IRS seems to have a moving number for the unreported income from 2004, 2005 and 2006 but they never sent me a bill or a notice of deficiency."

He said the charges against him are not for tax evasion but for signing an incorrect tax return.

"I haven't calculated or prepared an income tax return for nearly 30 years," he said. "All that work is done by a Certified Public Account who had my power of attorney for all tax matters from 1997 through 2006. That firm has all my information and it did all the calculations. During the years the federal government is questioning, my businesses grossed more than $10 million. Thousands of checks were written to a variety of taxing districts, vendors, suppliers, clients, contractors and other companies and people we did business with. No one has complained about any of our figures except the IRS."

In April 2008, a team of federal agents from several organizations swarmed into Gallatin County and raided Lawrence's law office, home, and his businesses including Racers, which he has since sold. They took with them boxes of paper work and computers used

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

The Owen County Farmer groaned as he opened my front door. Accompanying him were the five beautiful Asian serving girls who are his constant companions and business partners. I could tell by the look on their faces things weren't rosy in the gourmet rice-growing business. I was afraid that perhaps one of their prize-winning water buffalo had gone lame, weevils had got in their seed supply or one of their important distributors had dropped their cash cow, Owen

County Light Brown Rice. I asked them to sit down and tell me all about it. The girls, as usual, looked stunning with their soft black hair falling over their matching silk kimonos. "We took a beating in the stock market," The Farmer said. "Last Friday, our stock portfolio dropped like a concrete block thrown off the Markland Bridge. We're afraid if things don't turn around soon, we'll have to sell the sailboat to pay the mortgage on our place in Aspen and give up our private box at the NASCAR track in Sparta." The Farmer and his assistants have been rolling in cash since the day they flooded their Eagle Creek bottom land to grow rice instead of tobacco. The girls' agricultural expertise, learned as children on rice plantations in Thailand, coupled with the Farmer's keen business sense made a formula for success. For more than 20 years everything they've touched has turned to gold. Their Owen County Brown Rice has been a favorite of health food stores around the world and gives them a lavish lifestyle. They have a sailboat in Tahiti, a ski lodge and a home with everything including a 12-person hot tub. I couldn't believe all that was in jeopardy. "We have every penny in the stock market," the Farmer sighed. "You know what that means. It's a nightmare." The only thing I know about Wall Street is what I read in the newspaper. Apparently, the richest men in America lost billions of dollars last week, so I assumed the Farmer's fears were legitimate. I tried to help. I told him if the stock market has gone south, maybe he should try commodities like hog bellies, spring wheat or yearling steers. He shook his head in despair. If not commodities, I suggested Treasury Bonds. I knew at least they'd be safe. He didn't like that idea either. Then, The Farmer's face and eyes began to gleam. "I've got it," he said. "It's not stocks, commodities or treasuries that I need. No way. I don't want to gamble with my future any longer. From now on, the girls and I are going to play it safe and invest in the only thing that's certain to keep going up in price." I told The Farmer that was good news but I was confused. I know you could grow rice around here but I had no idea you could findoi t too.

D-Day Anniversary

Dear Editor:

D-Day, The Longest Day, was June 6th. as intended. It never does in battle. Men were seasick. Landing craft landed at wrong places. The flying weather was far from ideal so that the fighter-bombers dropped their payloads too far inland rather than take the risk of bombing American troops. Tanks failed to arrive. Radios were lost or waterlogged. Men drowned after being dropped too far off the beaches. Naval gunfire was inaccurate. Thirty percent of the first wave of assault troops at Omaha were either killed or wounded in the first hour. It was chaos. Yet, we kept on.

The two beaches that fell to the Americans were code named Utah and Omaha. The 4th Infantry Division drew Utah Beach. The 29th and 1st Infantry Divisions got Omaha.

General Dwight Eisenhower picked the 4th Infantry Division and the 29th Infantry Division because they were untested in combat. They had no first-hand knowledge of what they were going to face. Not knowing what was ahead of them, he felt it would lead to a better combat performance.

He worried the 1st Infantry Division, veterans of North Africa and Sicily might not have the courage to withstand another dreadful assault. It was a calculated risk. Not everything went as intended. It never does in battle. Men were seasick. Landing craft landed at wrong places. The flying weather was far from ideal so that the fighter-bombers dropped their payloads too far inland rather than take the risk of bombing American troops. Tanks failed to arrive. Radios were lost or waterlogged. Men drowned after being dropped too far off the beaches. Naval gunfire was inaccurate. Thirty percent of the first wave of assault troops at Omaha were either killed or wounded in the first hour. It was chaos. Yet, we kept on.

More troops, more tanks, more personal courage. As the sun set, we had landed 155,000 soldiers and we controlled 80 square kilometers of France. Not a lot, but just enough to keep going forward.

It was The Longest Day.

Mysterious chest made at Warsaw Furniture Factory

Dear Editor:

I moved to Kentucky ten years ago and was captivated by the hospitality of the people. The horse culture is the finest in all the land and the Kentucky Derby is exhilarating.

Two years ago, my landlord was emptying a storage unit and asked me if I wanted any of the contents. I noticed a dark chest with large "cat paw" feet that was falling apart and thought it must be very old.

I took the chest and my friend, who is a finish carpenter, came over with some clamps and glue and then it was in good shape. The construction with the joints is of the finest quality.

I noticed a stamp on the back of the chest was reading, "The Warsaw Furniture MFG. Co., Warsaw, Kentucky".

I was so interested in the history of this antique I called the newspaper and discovered a beautiful old river town, Warsaw, Kentucky. Warsaw auctioneer Darrell Maines told me my chest is made of Tiger Oak.

Sincerely,
Glenn Moran

EPA's war on coal will cost Kentuckians big time

By Jim Waters

Kentuckians may soon find out via soaring electric bills that what happens in Washington, D.C. doesn't stay in Washington, D.C.

As the Environmental Protection Agency's regulatory power grows, coal production in the Appalachian region—including eastern Kentucky—diminishes.

Mines close and permits to open new mines, along with the new jobs, are held hostage by environmental fanatics, most of whom probably don't even know how to put a miner's hat on their swollen heads.

Groups like Beyond Coal celebrate the fact that 110 out of 522 Appalachian coal-fired power plants have closed. These left-wing zealots actually cheer the hardship that results, including the fact plant shutdowns have led to a loss of 13 percent of all coal-based electric capacity in the nation.

These extremists are aided and abetted by the Obama administration, which previously pointed to bankrupt solar panel manufacturer Solyndra as a "true engine of economic growth" while vowing to destroy Appalachia's coal industry.

Solyndra, an unproven industry, got a half-billion dollars from taxpayers and failed. The only thing coal miners—who have proven their productivity for decades—receive from this administration is a slap in the face in the form of a declaration of war on their way of life.

This war is waged with regulations like coal-ash rules the agency itself estimates will place an additional $31 billion annual burden on the economy.

Keep in mind neither the coal companies nor the EPA itself will bear that cost. Consumers—even ones who don't live in coal country—will pay the price for Washington's regulatory fervor.

A new report by the American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) finds the sweeping new EPA rules are set to hit Kentucky and our adjoining neighbors harder than any other region in the nation.

The study estimates Kentucky will lose more than 12,000 jobs and nearly $2 billion in industry revenue. That's the ninth-most harm to a state's economy in the nation as a result of the EPA's onslaught.

The Bluegrass State is not alone in suffering the wrath of Washington's do-gooders. Five of the commonwealth's seven neighboring states would be among the ten most negatively impacted by the "EPA regulatory train wreck," including Illinois, West Virginia and Ohio—whose economies would be the first, second and third-most harmed, respectively.

But collateral damages of overheated EPA regulations do not end there.

Fox News Online recently reported that PJM Interconnection—a company operating the electric transmission system for many parts of Appalachia—determined the 2015 market-clearing price of $136 per megawatt of capacity will be "eight times higher than the price for 2012".

Since capacity prices comprise only a portion of your electric bill, your rates thankfully won't go up by 700 percent three years from now.

But, ALEC reports, they will go up by more than 13 percent, which is the same amount of power capacity lost by the closure of Appalachian coal mines.

A Washington Examiner editorial summed up these developments, saying: "Ordinary working people will pay the price for (the Obama administration's) attempt to placate an ideological base consumed by hatred of coal and fear that global warming will soon send tidal waves through the streets of New York City."

The EPA knows: Someone's gotta pay, might as well be you.

in the businesses. They also brought in dogs that unsuccessfully looked for drugs in the dancers' dressing rooms at Racers. This is not the only time Lawrence has been a target of the government. In July 2010, officials from the Kentucky Alcohol Beverage Control department entered and seized files at Lawrence's Pit Stop restaurant, which has since closed. At the time, he accused the ABC, which pulled Racers' liquor-by-the-drink license, of harassment. Lawrence is represented by lawyers James Kiefer and Robert Carran. They claim the money the IRS says their client received from Racers and his businesses wasn't income but was repayment of money he advanced to the businesses.

The trial is expected to last a week. Lawrence said he's looking forward to his day in court so he can clear his name.

"A wise and respected lawyer told me long ago that if I was lucky, worked hard and became successful, sooner or later I would end up in a fight with the IRS," he said. "I guess he knew what he was talking about."

Girls season ends after regional loss

The most successful season in Gallatin County softball history came to a close last Wednesday afternoon.

Defending Eighth Region champion Walton-Verona eliminated the Lady Wildcats with a 5-3 victory in the regional semifinals at South Oldham High School in Crestwood.

Gallatin fell behind early and could never grab the lead against the Bearcats, who fell in the title game to Oldham County.

Brooke Dossett and Hannah Dossett had two hits apiece to lead Gallatin. Alysse Kearns had a hit and Kelsea Satchwell hit a solo home run.

Satchwell, Hannah Dossett and Gloria Groves each drove in a run. Danielle Nichelson was the losing pitcher.

Satchwell and Hannah Dossett were selected to the All Tournament Team for the Lady Wildcats who bow out with 22 wins and 10 losses. Great season!

Batter up

School is out and that means it's time for backyard fun and games. On Monday in Warsaw, Myle Peck, 14, pitched to her sister, Maddie, while her other sister, Makenzie, played catcher. Myle also pitches for the Lady Wildcats softball team. Photo by Kelley Warnick

Sports in Kentucky by Bob Watkins

What American loveth a story-line more ardently than one in which this athlete or that one is labeled: "your chances are two ... slim and none!"

I'll Have Another is at Belmont Park this week and predictors and poets are holding forth with forecasts and verse calling up, for background, ghostly silhouettes of Affirmed and Citation and Triple Crown club.

Does this I'll Have Another belong?

Consider a broader scene: Close your eyes, pull your imagination up to the Triple Crown table and think a scene from the movie Seabiscuit ... beaten down Red Pollard (Tobey McGuire) is riding Seabiscuit through a stunning Kentucky countryside in autumn.

Whaaaa WHOOO!

Right off the pages of Laura Hillenbrand's gorgeous novel: Seabiscuit: An American Legend (2003) the story came alive through Jeff Bridges and Chris Cooper and a few good horses.

Now comes another people's choice whose chances may be slim.

This week, the big chestnut stands at a barn door at Belmont Park, New York on the threshold of a place in horse racing history where only a special few have gone before. Two months ago this horse was nobody to the experts, being ridden by a nobody kid on board.

Amusing then, the high drama swirling today. By Saturday television would beg for sugary essay from Haywood Hale-Brown or Jack Whitaker if they were still around. Meanwhile, the hoss that cost J. Paul Reddam 11,000 bucks at a Keeneland sale, frolics unencumbered by a single question about pressure.

If this were baseball, say, Ryan Sandberg at Cooperstown, he would be all a tremble, even speechless about his name going onto a roster with Willie, Mickey and the Duke. Fresh, isn't it, that I'll Have Another doesn't know a Whirlaway from a door knob?

I'll Have Another stands at Belmont to eat, walk and wallow with no inkling of betting odds, tote board nor distinguished club to which his name could be affixed by Sunday. And never mind the best part – the breeding barn and his stud life future. I'll Have Another indeed.

What a delight then, an athlete with no ego, no trash talk, no reason to be cool, no pressure and no clue about 34 years and 11 fails, since a Triple Crown winner, Affirmed, 1978.

We are in on something here. A pause late Saturday to peak in at least to see if the spirits of Secretariat, Citation, Seattle Slew and the others have a new classmate.

Finally, to set another scene, close eyes once more and pull your imagination up to the table. There was this horse that had raced 17 times and lost them all and was mad as hell about something most of the time.

On a cold November day at Pimlico Race Course near Baltimore the stars aligned and improbable stood opposite one flicker of magic spread over two minutes. It all ignited. Little man Seabiscuit finally had a chance, a race against the finest horse of his day, War Admiral, Triple Crown champion. Owner of the latter chortled to all who would listen that this little pony Seabiscuit had business in such elite company as his Admiral. Everyone laughed as words made to be eaten were on the record.

In the next two minutes that day in 1938, the Biscuit and War Admiral ran a race we have seen only once since, Affirmed and Alydar, 1978. Head to head virtually start to finish. Into the last turn, then in a final drive Seabiscuit's big heart held out while the Admiral faded to four back. The People's Choice Biscuit cruised away and left the Admiral behind at the finish.

Whaaa WHO, indeed.

The unlikely winner that day was an $8,000 purchase, I'll Have Another cost his owner $11,000.

However unlikely, maybe Triple Crown time has come again.

Our friends and neighbors have had some real fun and happy events lately, and here are some of them:

Patsy Brown started her Memorial Day weekend early and was busy right through the holiday. On Thursday, she drove to Louisville to visit her sister, Mary Rae Mattox, who was in the hospital recovering from surgery. She then went home, picked up her dogs, and drove to Vevay to spend a few days with her sisters, Myrna Lozier, Sandra Sawyer, and Marlene Lozier. Saturday morning Patsy left Vevay for Warsaw, stopping at Country Blooms to buy flowers to decorate the graves of her loved ones. On Saturday afternoon, she and sisters, Marlene Lozier

Alumni Picnic will be held on June 13

The annual Gallatin County High School Alumni Picnic will be held Wednesday, June 13, at the Gallatin County Park Shelter House, located behind the Gallatin County Upper Elementary/Middle School.

All alumni are encouraged to attend and bring a covered dish to share, and a lawn chair. Plan to spend some time with old friends and get reacquainted and reminisce. Beginning at 12 noon, the picnic lasts until the last person leaves. It's always a fun time so plan to attend!

and Sandra Sawyer, attended the graduation ceremony of her niece, Gloria Groves. The group then attended the graduation party at the home of Gloria's mother, Dodie Lay, along with many friends and family members. When they drove back to Vevay that evening, the sisters were pleased and happy to find that Mary Rae had been released from the hospital and would be staying with them to recuperate. CONGRATULATIONS TO NEW GRADUATE, GLORIA!

On Sunday, Patsy and her sister, Myrna Lozier, went to Walmart in Carrollton while their other sister, Marlene Lozier, decorated the graves of her loved ones and picked up Mary Rae's puppy, Peanut, who had been staying with their sister, Rita Sample, while Mary Rae was hospitalized. On Memorial Day, the ladies hosted a cookout, grilling hamburgers and hot dogs with all the trimmings, topped off with strawberry cake. Joining the sisters were family members Benjy and Nicole Towles with their twin daughters, Carly and Jada; Aaron and Tracey Cayton with their son, Dominic; CJ Towles with his sons, Jay, Pacey, and Jared; Patsy's two dogs, Sophie and Taco; Mary Rae's puppy, Peanut; and Myrna's dog, Jack. Patsy said the family really enjoyed their time together, as always, and are looking forward to their next get-together.

Sally Haddix and several friends have just returned from a two-day white water rafting adventure in Beckley, West Virginia. She said the weather was beautiful, and they particularly enjoyed the breathtaking scenery and the fantastic wildlife on New River. Even though Beckley offers numerous hotels with all the amenities, the ladies decided camping would be more fun. For those unfamiliar with Beckley, it was mentioned in last month's Smithsonian magazine as one of America's most desirable small towns in which to live.

Leslie and Jeff Baillie spent Memorial Day weekend celebrating the graduation of Jeff's youngest daughter, Kelsey, from Rising Sun High School. Kelsey graduated with honors and is the recipient of the Lily Foundation's four-year scholarship. She will be attending Manchester University in Indiana.

CONGRATULATIONS TO NEW GRADUATE, KELSEY!

This past weekend, Jeff Baillie was Best Man at the wedding of Kevin Vest of Hebron to Stephanie Allgeyer. Leslie attended a baby shower for her fifteenth grandchild, due later this month to parents Brian and Ashley Perkins of Sunman, Indiana. Leslie is happily anticipating the birth of this grandchild as well as another one due this month and number seventeen coming in January.

Mary Jane Day attended the wedding of Wayne Rassman and Trudy Yenchochic Saturday evening at the Riverfront Park. She said it was a beautiful ceremony with good food and drinks, and well attended by numerous friends. Mary Jane thought that both bride and groom seemed to be glowing with happiness. CONGRATULATIONS TO WAYNE AND TRUDY!

Bonnie Roberts also attended the nuptials of Wayne Rassman and Trudy Yenchochic, Saturday evening. Bonnie said it was a beautiful wedding, and she was thrilled to be seated at the same table as friends with whom she had graduated, including Mike Parker, Sally and Montel Haddix, Hazel Homman, Mike and Kathy O'Connor and several others. Bonnie said she thoroughly enjoyed talking with her friends about old times and catching up with everyone.

Delores and Terry Hopperton had a surprise visit from her cousin Gene Surber and his wife, Mary Lee, on Memorial Day. They enjoyed catching up on family news and trading grandchildren stories. Sunday afternoon, the Hopperton family celebrated the 92nd birthday of Terry's mother, Vivian Hopperton, at her home in Napoleon. Other family members attending the celebration were Brad, Jenny, Lila, Carter, and Madelyn Hopperton; and Steve, Josh, and Kaleb Frontz. The family took Vivian a DQ ice cream cake and enjoyed their time with her while the little ones had a grand time running and playing in Vivian's big yard. HAPPY BIRTHDAY VIVIAN!

Cindy and Jack Williamson went on a three-night camping trip to Butler State Park over the Memorial Day weekend with daughters Jacalyn and Olivia, along with Jacalyn's friend Morgan and Olivia's fiancé, Josh Henden. They enjoyed cooking out, swimming, hiking, and all the amenities the park provides. They returned home tired, but happy.

Betty and Boyd Lionberger hosted a birthday celebration for their grandson-in-law, Rob Turner, on Sunday. Family members present included Julie and Tim Hamilton with their daughter, Hannah and son Matthew; Jacalyn Williamson, Mark and Jeanie West, Anthony West, April Campbell and her friend, Alicia, Albany Campbell, Megan West, Keith and Carol West, and of course, Rob and Kristina Turner. Three year-old Albany and Grandpa Boyd had fun together playing on the deck all afternoon, washing and drying toy dishes and tending to the baby dolls that live at Grandma's house. Albany put Grandpa Boyd in charge of all the diaper changes!

Word has been received of the death of Hazel Cammack, former owner of the Suds-N-Sun Laundromat. She died Monday, June 4, following an extended illness. Our sympathy is extended to her family.

Update on the baby raccoons that Matthew Hamilton found last week: All three babies survived and thrived and have now been released back into the wild.

I would like to thank my dearest friend, Patsy Brown, who came to my house two days last week and cleaned my house. There are many things I am now unable to do, and Patsy came to my rescue. I will never forget her kindness.

THANK YOU PATSY.

WRITING GROUP

•Interested in writing but don't know how to get started? Many writers belong to a writing group. Each member brings a few pages of their project and reads it aloud and other members critique it. Everybody's feedback matters as one person may be good with grammar, another may know a lot of history, and a third may be a genius at titles. Our groups will have people of all ages, except for children. If you're interested in being part of a newly-forming writing group at the library, contact the library (at 567-2786) or Daria Kelleher at 567-1973.

Cards of Thanks

Smithson

The family of Edward Smithson expresses our gratitude and thanks to everyone who called, sent food, cards, monetary gifts, charitable donations and their prayers to our family during Ed’s long battle with his illnesses and especially during his passing. Words cannot truly describe how much this has meant to all of us, but it has helped us get through this very difficult time in our lives. We have several special people we would like to thank:

Mike and Bernard at Garnett-New-McDonald Funeral Home, you have been with us through three traumatic times and your support and understanding has been wonderful and most appreciated. Thank you both!

Thanks to Sheriff Josh Neale and his deputies for making Ed’s final ride so memorable and for the presentation at his gravesite. He would have loved this, just like he did all of you Remember the rain!

To all of my bus garage family for their prayers, flowers and gifts, for the phone calls and visits and for always being there for me. I love you all and I have loved working with all of you.

To the ladies of all the school cafeterias, thank you for all the food. It was delicious and most appreciated. You are special.

To our church family at the Warsaw Christian Church, we can never thank you enough. We are so blessed to be a part of this loving group of friends. Brother Phil, your words for and about Ed were so perfect. We’ve always known you are a special person.

To the very best EMT/ambulance squad anywhere - you guys and gals will never truly understand how much Ed and I and our family appreciated everything you did for us. You all are just awesome!

And Jan Bledsoe, thank you for everything and for always being there and knowing just what to say and do for me and my (our) children and grandchildren. You are a special person to me and I thank you.

It is truly wonderful to live in a community where we have so many friends. Thank you all!

Nikki Smithson, Benjamin and Angela Bledsoe and family, Tracey and Dave Rice and family, Molly and Tony Carlton and family, Rebecca and Jonah Bex and family,

News from Gallatin Health Care

by Mary Ann Dopf

I have always considered myself to be a creature of habit when it comes to visiting Gallatin Health Care. I usually visit it on Sundays, mostly in the evenings. I will catch 20-30 people relaxing, getting ready to retire for the night. They are always so glad I have stopped by.

Today, I decided to see if they rise with the chickens or sleep late. My goal on this visit was to see some residents I have not previously visited and to make my rounds before work. I had a two-hour cleaning job I could not do because my customer is in the hospital so I thought I’d use that time for a visit at Gallatin Health Care.

As always, I was greeted with Jerry Lusby sitting in the lobby. He is such a joy to talk with and he always remembers what I am doing. I love talking with him about his mother and sister.

I then wanted to go check on the potato peeling activity. As the old saying goes, “a day late and a dollar short”. That was me. I missed out on the residents getting those potatoes ready to cook. Nothing sounds better to me and Donnie Jones than a cast iron skillet of fried potatoes and onions. Donnie named all the ways potatoes could be cooked. He sounded as if he were a chef.

When I went to Herman Ligon’s room, he wasn’t there. I knew I would find him outside in the courtyard. I pulled up a chair and we talked about the good ol’ days. I am so glad Joe Smith is still making his Sunday morning visits. Herman is always smiling when I ask if Joe is still coming. They have been friends for many moons, as I tell Herman, and Herman looks forward to Joe’s visits.

It is often said “It’s a small world” and, indeed, that is true today. Mrs. Virginia Lance is the mother-in-law of Spencer Smith. I have never spoken to Mrs. Lance and when she told me she is from Knoxville and had moved to Warsaw, it was as if we connected. Mrs. Lance has read my articles in The Gallatin County News but gave it no thought why I have never come to visit her. We talked about things she was reading and about a few people from Riverside Square Apartments. I was so glad to meet a new friend.

I went to see Jim and Agnes French but they were sleeping in their Lazy Boy chairs so I moved on to visit a couple of other residents, then went back to Mr. and Mrs. French’s room. There was my Kodak moment. I always have one. Mrs. French had peeled a banana and had eaten about half of it when she saw me come in and she looked up with a smile as though it was the best thing since sliced bread. Mr. French said he eats a banana every day. We talked about a few people and I recalled him coming into my store years ago. It is so nice to give back a smile and a kind gesture to the residents I recall from my past.

I chatted with Cecil Darlen about his UK poster. He has been a fan for over 30 years. He was reading the newspaper and told me he was from Carrollton. It was my pleasure to meet another new friend.

It was also my pleasure to be reacquainted with Tony Price. I had not seen him in years. He talked about his daughters and his car repair days.

Carole Losey told me all about Brianna Marksberry’s baby shower. I was not able to attend but, from what I hear, she received many great gifts.

Jessie Seivers showed me all the baby quilts she has made. I reserved one for my nephew who will be born in September.

A few of my regular residents were resting so I put bananas on their tables as I left.

Planting by the Signs

by Phil Case

For all of you planting your garden by the phases of the moon and signs of the zodiac, here's the information for the week ahead – and more.

The moon

The moon is in the dark phase now and will remain there until 11:02 a.m. EDT June 19. Through June 18, plant only those veggies that produce beneath the ground, preferably in a fertile sign but definitely NOT in a killing one!

The light moon for above-ground producers comes to rule just after 11 a.m. on the 19th and continues in force until July 3.

Again: when the light moon is in force proceed with only light-moon activities and planting above-ground producing veggies. Conversely, when the dark moon is in force it's below-ground producers.

The signs

According to the signs of the zodiac, our series of so-so signs continues today and on through Sunday. Today (Wednesday), Thursday and Friday are ruled by Capricorn (the knees), followed by Saturday and Sunday under the influence of Aquarius (the legs).

Remember these signs aren't impressively good but they aren't bad either, just so-so.

The outstanding days for planting, still with the moon in the dark phase, are Monday, Tuesday and next Wednesday, June 11-13, when the sign moves to Pisces (the feet), one of the four most fertile signs.

All planting should cease, however, on Thursday and Friday, July 14-15 when the sign moves to Aries (the head), one of the two killing signs. Reserve these days for killing, deadening – any activity but planting.

Looking a little further ahead, some outstanding planting is on tap for Saturday and Sunday, June 16-17, when Taurus (the neck) comes into force. This is another of the most outstandingly productive signs.

Making changes

If you have changes to make like stopping smoking, starting a diet or exercise program, weaning small animals or children, scheduling elective surgery – anything that requires a change – here's the formula: The moon in the dark phase and the signs going out of the body, past anything that "functions" so that means thighs, knees, legs and feet – Sagittarius through Pisces.

You have through next Wednesday, June 13, so if you have changes to make then have at it! To show you I practice what I preach here, I scheduled some needed dental work on Monday: moon in the dark phase, sign in Pisces (the feet)! You just can't beat that.

Late gardens

Here in Kentucky, we really have a small window of opportunity to plant many of those hot-weather loving veggies and expect them to germinate, grow and produce something for us to harvest. If you consider that three months from today we will be celebrating the Thursday AFTER Labor Day we see time moves on quickly.

Our unprotected planting for hot-weather lovers, depending on days to maturity, runs from about Mother's Day until the third or fourth week of June – six or so really good weeks, which should be plenty of time. After that, with summer just having officially begun, we have to start looking at the other end of the season when the days are growing shorter and the ground is cooling.

All that to say, even if you haven't done the first thing you still have plenty of time to do some planting of anything that loves hot weather, but there's beginning to be just that bit of urgency about it.

As I've written in this space before, one of the best gardens I have ever had wasn't started until June 21. And when you consider the late garden, there are many advantages: the soil temperature is already warm, the craziness of spring in Kentucky (which really wasn't too crazy this year) is over, and it's pleasant to get out and work the ground.

But remember the weeds will grow as fast – sometimes faster – than your plants so be ready to dig in and do battle.

Before you plant anything, check the "days to maturity" on the seed packet or spike in the peat pot. If, like bush beans for instance, it says "50 days" then you're looking at the first of August. But 90 days takes you until after Labor Day for tomatoes, which is still fine.

So, plant away! There's still plenty of time and I think the advantages of the late garden far outweigh any risks.

A good bet

Last year, you may recall, a faithful reader insisted on planting pumpkins in mid to late August that would be harvested before frost. I said that if that happened and she could make a pie of that pumpkin I would accept it in the face while seated on the lovely porch of this fine publication.

It didn't happen, of course, since most pumpkins – even those of pie-making size – take 90 days from seeding to harvest and the jack-o-lantern size may take up to 120. Now I'm not good at math, but I think that puts MATURE pie pumpkin harvest, at the earliest, in November and the jack-o-lanterns a week or so into Advent!

This year, given the blessedly warm weather we've had, I might not make such a bet. Last year, however, I wasn't too skeered, as they say.

Making changes

If you have changes to make like stopping smoking, starting a diet or exercise program, weaning small animals or children, scheduling elective surgery – anything that requires a change – here's the formula: The moon in the dark phase and the signs going out of the body, past anything that "functions" so that means thighs, knees, legs and feet – Sagittarius through Pisces.

You have through next Wednesday, June 13, so if you have changes to make then have at it! To show you I practice what I preach here, I scheduled some needed dental work on Monday: moon in the dark phase, sign in Pisces (the feet)! You just can't beat that.

State Parks offer special June events

Trips Retracing Daniel Boone's Journey Planned This Summer

Tours that retrace explorer Daniel Boone's journey to Kentucky are being offered this summer by the Fort Boonesborough Foundation, a non-profit organization that supports Fort Boonesborough State Park.

The tours offer guests a glimpse of the back roads as you retrace the route to Fort Boonesborough.

A one-day tour, offered Aug. 21, will start at Fort Boonesborough State Park at 9 a.m. and will travel to Levi Jackson State Park in London. The tour includes lunch and will return to Fort Boonesborough later in the afternoon. It will also include a presentation by Scott New, who portrays Boone at the fort.

The cost is $50 for adults and $40 for children 12 and under, and includes fort admission, box lunch, snacks and water, and New's expert knowledge.

Two-day tours will be offered July 10-11 and Sept. 26-27. These tours will also start at Fort Boonesborough and will take guests to Wilderness Road State Park in Virginia and Cumberland Gap National Historical Park along the Kentucky-Tennessee-Virginia border. Guests will spend the night at Pine Mountain State Resort Park in Pineville. The second day will feature Levi Jackson State Park in London and will end at Fort Boonesborough.

The cost is $220 per person for single occupancy or $360 for two people, double occupancy. There are also rates for groups of three and four. The price includes transportation, admission to parks, lodging, four meals, snacks and water, and New's expert knowledge.

Transportation for the trips is by bus.

For reservations and more information, visit www.fortboonesborough-foundation.org or call Elizabeth Chalfant at 859-771-3607.

Lake Malone State Park to Hold Fishing With Kids Program

Lake Malone State

Park will hold a Fishing With Kids program June 16 from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., as part of its 50th anniversary celebration.

This free event is for children ages 4-15, and all children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Fishing can be from the bank or a boat. Bring your own bait.

There will be drawings for prizes for participants as well as prizes for fish that are caught.

The grand prize is a 14-foot johnboat. (Stringers are not allowed; please bring a bucket for fish.) A cookout for participants will follow.

The Friends of Lake

Malone State Park will also have a fish fry fundraiser at 3 p.m. for $6 a plate, including a drink. The fish fry is in celebration of the park's 50th anniversary. For more information about FOL-MSP fish fry fundraiser contact Don Phelps 270-543-7829.

For more information on the Fishing With Kids event, contact Mike Kirby at 270-725-1086 or mikek@logan-tele.com.

Lake Malone has a campground, fishing, picnic areas, playground and hiking trails with views of the lake. For more information, call 270-657-2111.

Exhibits Make the Fair

I'm looking forward to seeing the wonderful display of exhibits at the fairgrounds in Glencoe this year. A second mobile unit has been refurbished by FFA students for FFA and Adult exhibits. As you prepare items for entering at the fair, keep a few things in mind.

Read the rules for your exhibit category in the fair catalog. Fair catalogs listing all categories and rules are available at several locations around the county including the Extension Office. Your May 30 issue of the Gallatin County News contained a Fair Catalog.

Check your Fair Catalog beginning on page 31 for exhibit information. Enter your items on the correct day: Needlework, Clothing, Foods, Canning, Hobbies, Junior Division and the Quilt Contest on Monday, June 18. Flowers, Garden, Bees and Honey, Art, Photography, and the Pie and Cake Contest on Tuesday, June 19. Exhibits are accepted from 9:00 a.m. to noon on both days. Entries must be picked up between 9:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon on Saturday, June 23.

Family night will be Tuesday, June 19 at the Gallatin County Fair. Cost is only $5 per family.

Our fair is one of the largest events of the summer for our community. The Fair Board works very hard all year to make sure that we have a safe, entertaining and fun fair. Please do your part and bring your exhibits to the fair. Who knows – you might earn the right to be named the best pickle maker or flower grower in the county!
